25X1 | Are located at Novo Selo under the command of a certain Milorad Lirosavijevic. A political commissar, Bubalo Dusan is also stationed in Novo Selo.

- 2. The KNOJ command in Nove Selo has jurisdiction over four different sections, three of which have duty on the Bulgarian border and one on the Greek border. The KNOJ unit assigned to the Greek border consists of 43 enlisted men and officers, under the command of a certain Franc Vrh, whose headquarters is in Morijevo (sic). The small size of this unit has made impossible the formation of any ambush teams.
- 3. Patrols and assignments in the Novo Selo area are generally much the same as they are in other areas along the Yugoslav-Greek border. At night, two KNOJ members patrol an assigned area together. If the area should prove to be a dangerous one, a third member is added. By day, one KNOJ member will take up his position in such a way that he will both have an unhampered view of the terrain and a means of keeping in visual contact with the KNOJ members stationed to his right and left.
- 4. The KNOJ unit on the Greek border is armed with automatic machine guns of a Soviet type known as Pe-Pe-Se (believed to be phonetic for PPC sub-machine gun), hand grenades, and different types of Italian, British and United States small arms. Each KNOJ member carries one sub-machine gun, two hand grenades, and a number of rounds of ammunition. This unit also has a team of five dogs.
- 5. Certain Security Police units are also stationed in Movo Selo. These wear a dark blue uniform which is a duplicate of the brown uniform worn by KNOJ. The Security Police generally attempt to induce the people to help seek out persons who have crossed illegally into Yugoslavia but the people do not cooperate wholeheartedly.
